With its rolling vineyards, ochre hills and medieval towns, Tuscany embodies that picture-perfect vision of Italy that keeps on seducing the world. In recent years, the region has seen a rise in wine resorts: elegant estates that combine immersive hospitality, bold architecture and sustainable viticulture. Think biodynamic vineyards at your doorstep, cypress trees framing infinity pools, and cellar-to-table dinners under vaulted stone ceilings, paired with Super Tuscans or Chianti Classico. From historic castles to sleek eco-retreats, these estates offer a full-bodied experience of the Tuscan dolce vita — with a generous pour of terroir, tradition and taste. Cin cin.

7. Badia a Coltibuono, Gaiole in Chianti

£ | POOL | Best for blessed peace

This ancient Benedictine abbey has a long history of viticulture: a recent archaeological dig unearthed Romano-Etruscan grape seeds more than 2,000 years old. Today Badia a Coltibuono has four simple apartments and a handful of rooms (formerly the monks' quarters) in perfect isolation in the Chianti hills. Up here, time stands still — and you can, too. Rest in the shady cloisters, picnic among the vines, and explore the ancient cantinas. Tasting highlights in the wine library include a mellow vin santo; and don't miss the excellent organic olive oil.
